

Frost Shades of the Upstate Offers High Performance Window Film Solutions

By Mike White, FOLKS Board Chair

Frost Shades of the Upstate is a national franchise with local ownership headquartered in Greenville, South Carolina. The company is owned by Bob Lunt who resides in the Seneca area. His decision to start a business in the Upstate was initially inspired by his daughters who both attended Clemson University. Bob remembers the frequent trips to Clemson, “We often came to visit our daughters and fell in love with the area and realized this was a great place to live.” His wife (Susan) was easily convinced because she grew up in the region and spent her summers at a camp near Lake Hartwell. She currently is a Water Resources agent with Clemson Extension and a frequent contributor to educational articles in FOLKS. Susan said, “The sense of community, people, and outstanding opportunity sealed the deal to build this business in the Upstate.”

Frost Shades of the Upstate installs high performance window film solutions that enable your windows to perform more efficiently while allowing the natural light into your home or business. They service the entire Upstate of South Carolina for both residential and commercial applications. Their goal is to create an environment that allows customers to be more comfortable in their home or business while conserving our energy resources. Bob said, “The reasons our customers reach out to us vary from needing privacy, protection against UV rays, glare control, security, or wanting to lower their energy bill.” As the local experts in high performance window films including decorative applications, Frost Shades specializes in delivering custom, affordable, and beautiful solutions to home and business owners. Bob said, “I never understood why people would live in an area filled with sunshine and keep their blinds closed all day!”

Frost Shades’s high-tech window films are precision manufactured in the USA from high-durability, multilayered polyester films; and they’re built to last. Whether you’re looking for a traditional window film that slashes harmful ultraviolet rays by 99 percent and can significantly reduce energy costs, advanced transitional tints that adapt to brightness and darkness, or window films to provide privacy in a bathroom, home gym, garage, or conference room, Frost Shades has a product for you.
